Waveland is a city located in Hancock County, Mississippi. It is part of the Gulfport-Biloxi, Mississippi Metropolitan Statistical Area.

Waveland (the Land of the Waves) was originally part of old Shieldsboro (now Bay St. Louis) and was known as Montgomery Station and Grand Bend before applying for, and being granted, a special charter to become a separate municipality with a Mayor and Board of Aldermen in 1888. From the beginning, it was a resort town to many New Orleans residents having summer homes here.

Waveland has a huge sense of community and hosts many events throughout the year. The Waveland "Festival of Lights" is on the first Sunday in December on Coleman Avenue. At 5:00 PM there is caroling on the steps of City Hall and at dusk, Santa arrives by fire truck to light the tree on City Hall's plaza. After the tree lighting, children's pictures are taken with the Carousel Reindeer, refreshments are served and children tell Santa their Christmas Wishes. The Krewe of Nereids, a women's carnival association, was established in 1966 and parades two Sundays before Mardi Gras on Highway 90 beginning in Bay St. Louis and ending in Waveland. It originally paraded on Coleman Avenue, but grew so large that it was forced to move to Highway 90.

Buccaneer State Park (dedicated on January 1, 1976) is located west of Waveland on 343 acres on property formerly owned by Andrew Jackson and known as Jackson Ridge.
